MILWAUKEE, WI, October 10, 2019 — Healthfuse, the industry leader in managing and sourcing revenue cycle vendors for hospitals and health systems, has been selected by Regional Health, a community-based health care system that serves 20 communities across western South Dakota and in eastern Wyoming, to be the vendor management partner across more than 50 healthcare service facilities.

"In today's environment, where healthcare reimbursement and revenue cycle operations have grown increasingly complex, healthcare systems are spending a whopping $30 billion on revenue cycle vendors," said Nick Fricano, president, and chief executive officer of Healthfuse. "We are thrilled that Regional Health selected Healthfuse as its vendor management partner. Our mandate is to rebuild vendor trust and transparency, ensuring compliance with their EPIC integration and driving bottom-line improvement.

Healthfuse combines technology, analytics and research to improve vendor performance and help healthcare organizations establish revenue cycle best practices. In July of 2019, Healthfuse identified a total three-year economic opportunity that will deliver $3.2M in collections improvement, $1.9M in contract savings and $2M+ in invoice recoveries and safeguard initiatives, netting $15.9 million in bottom line improvement for Regional Health.

"Our financial viability depends on our ability to secure competitive vendor contracts and achieve best possible performance," says Ted Syverson, vice president of revenue cycle at Regional Health. "Healthfuse is helping us do just that."
